

Tom has over 30 years of experience in technology industries, ranging from computer systems to network and data communications, and most recently SAAS software, video platforms and services. For the past 15 years, he has worked closely with the major Media & Entertainment companies in Los Angeles and New York on their mobile, device and content strategies and technologies. Tom has also partnered with firms to provide direction in their strategic marketing efforts.

Tom has held a variety of senior management positions including Product Management, Sales, Business Development and most recently Corporate Development.

For the past 6 years he has worked at a Fortune 500 Software Company in Corporate Development responsible for key Strategic Initiatives and Corporate Partnerships.

Tom earned in BS from Northeastern University in Boston and is also a UC Berkeley certified Executive Coach.

With a deep background in both technology and relationship building, Tom is known for his ability to see the broader picture and has been instrumental in aligning his companies and partners' long range strategic and technology planning.

Executive coaching is a true calling for him, having served in a broad spectrum of management positions and disciplines. He brings a wealth of experience to the coaching environment. He is passionate about facilitating others to realize their goals and potential through an established coaching methodology and program.

While not working, Tom enjoys hiking, biking and spending time exploring nature's wonders and the amazing energy of the Southern California desert and mountains.